EDITORIAL NOTES

SCHOOL OF JURISPRUDENCE NOTES

The 1914 Summer Session of the University of California will begin on June 22 and end on August 1st. Courses will be given in the School of Jurisprudence by Dean Robert L. Henry, Jr., of the School of Law of the University of North Dakota and by Professor Manley O. Hudson of the School of Law of the University of Missouri. Dean Henry will give courses in Administrative Law and in the Law of Bankruptcy. Professor Hudson will give a course in the Law of Property.

In addition to the regular course examinations which are for the purpose of promotion from class to class, an examination based upon the work of the entire three years, will, beginning with

May 1915, be required of all candidates for the J. D. degree. The examination may be written or oral or both and may include the working out of practical problems in the Law Library. The purpose of the examination is to test the ability of the student to correlate the subjects studied, formulate general principles, ascertain with accuracy the statutes and decisions, and apply the whole to the solution of a concrete case. The examination will not call for detailed knowledge; it will not be a test either of memory or of ability to cram, but is intended for the sole purpose of determining the efficiency developed by the careful work of three years.

Pursuant to the Resolution of the Board of Regents of April 14, 1914, a Law Library Fee of $12.50 each half-year will be charged all students, regular and special, who are registered in more than one professional course in law in the School of Jurisprudence, the money accruing from such fees to be devoted to the purchase of books for the law library. There is no tuition fee.
